- The Russian Managers Association (AMR)
- The Russian Union of Industrialists and Entrepreneurs (RSPP)
- The Association of Industrialists of the Mining and Metals Production Sector of Russia (AMROS)
- The World Steel Association (WSA)
- The Russian Steel Association
- The Non-Commercial Partnership National Association for Subsoil Use Auditing (NP NAEN)
- The Association of Railway Equipment Manufacturers
- The Consumer Council on Operations of OJSC Russian Railways
- The Steel Construction Development Association (SCDA)

STEEL CONSTRUCTION DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION

EVRAZ helped set up the Steel Construction Development Association, which unites all steel construction market participants: producers and suppliers of metal, steel production plants, architectural firms, scientific-research and project-design institutes, and educational establishments. The SCDA's main aim is to promote the use of steel instead of concrete in the Russian construction industry. The organisation concentrates its efforts in four main areas – see below.

Engineering centre

- Fulfills pre-project proposals and gives expert consultations on facilitating a more rational and effective use of steel structures for SCDA members
- Maintains a database of built objects as well as a catalogue of SCDA participants

Regulatory and technical centre

- Improving Russian regulatory and technical documentation for design, construction, use of building materials

Media centre

- Promoting the benefits of steel construction technology among investors, developers and government agencies
- Holding SCDA round tables and scientific conferences and seminars

Scientific and educational centre

- Implementing training programmes for architects and designers on steel structure designs
- Organising competitions for architecture students and designers
- Establishing the SCDA Technical Library
